What the public say

MICHAEL 48, from London "I'd have the painting, but only so I could sell it to take her on a date, if she fancies it!"

MEGAN 26, from Notts "Even I'd pick boobs! I'm an art fan but the Picasso just doesn't compare!"

> KIERAN 31, from London "It has to be the boobs! You can't really do anything with a painting, can you?"

FRED 26, from London "Boobs over art every time! If she was in the painting, it'd be miles better than it is!"

> DANIEL 17, from London "I don't care how expensive that painting is, it's horrible! Boobs all day long for me!"

MATT 25, from Cambridge "Picasso's work is far superior. Take her away at once, I want to be alone with the painting!"

NUTS' FINAL VERDICT! Bar one arty lad, it's official - Britain's men prefer real boobs to painted ones!

- Finding a supercar company called Gumpert is a little bit like meeting a hot woman called Bernard, but the car-making company is named after ex-Audi Racing boss Roland Gumpert, who knows his fast cars!
- Gumpert's first achievement was the record-breaking 650bhp, 224mph Apollo.
 Out in 2005, it was a top car, but it was very ugly.
- Indeed, the Apollo sat happily atop the Power Lap board of Top Gear for ages.
- Their new car, the Tornante, then, is kind of like the beauty to the Apollo beast.
- The cool looks are thanks to Italian coachbuilder Touring Superleggera.
- Following the company's philosophy to bin everything non-essential, the two-seat Tomante is based around
- a chrome-molybdenum steel space frame with carbonfibre monocoque chassis and composite body panels.
- Open the gull-wing doors and you'll sit with an Audiderived twin turbo 4.2-litre V8 behind your lobes, inherited from the Apollo.
- Power is up from 650 to 700 horses, and laying that to the road comes via the same sixspeed TT40e gearbox as the
- Apollo, but now with a flappy paddle-shift. Gumpert promises shift times to be as quick as an F1 car.
- How quick? Breaking the 200mph supercar club ceiling quick. Plus a sub three-second 0-62mph.
- Gumpert hopes to build 20 to 50 of the car in 2012, but don't expect change from £400k. So footballers and Simon Cowell only, please!

"Every time

at Oxford Unit
It's been full of pr*cks!"

A long stiff one Last week. I read that scientists have discovered that one of the side-effects of being bitten by a Brazilian wandering spider - if you survive, that is - is that you pop an erection for four fking hours. The boffins think that if they can somehow harness this, they can combat erectile dysfunction. Hey, ladies, if you spread peanut butter on your genitals, a labrador can apparently make you wet for about the same amount of time. Wonderful thing, science!

I see new government rulings in the UK mean transsexual and transgender prisoners are now legally allowed to wear dresses and padded bras in prison. It turns out that a lot of these guys had been bitterly complaining about the uniforms for years. Strangely, though, none of them complained about the rapes!

Sheen's a proper charlie

Charlie Sheen. Oh boy, I hear he's had his catchphrase, "Winning", tattooed on his wrist, as a rebuttal to what everybody's saying about him. But according to this celebrity doctor guy in the States called Doctor Phil. Charlie has all the signs of someone who's suicidal. Jeez, I just hope if he does kill himself, he slits the other wrist, 'cos I just couldn't take the irony. So that's bestiality, prison rape and suicide so far - a good week!

Oppressing the little man

I also read last week that a performing dwarf has been banned from Oxford University because halfway through his show, he whips out his penis and uses it to drag a vacuum cleaner around the stage. It seems the little darlings at Oxford Uni deem his act too offensive. Come on, what's your problem guys? Every time I've performed at Oxford Uni, I've found the place full of little pr*cks!

A message to the Irish cricket team

As an Australian, I couldn't end this week's column without congratulating the Irish cricket team on beating England. Hear that, England? You're cr*p! You're nothing! You were beaten by Ireland. Hang on a minute. That means Ireland are better than Australia. You know what? I've changed my mind. Fk you, Ireland!

Jim Jefferies: Alcoholocaust Live is out now on DVD

Mike Tyson

The boxing legend talks to Nuts!

i Iron Mike! Talk us through your love of pigeon-fancying. Iron Mike's dead. I'm a different person today. I've loved pigeons since I was nine years old. They were my escape. I was fat and ugly and the other kids teased me all the time. The only joy I had was pigeons. Is fancying pigeons similar to bringing up children? I've got eight children but I don't think I was ever a good father. I was living in a fog. I don't recognise the boxer Mike Tyson any more. I'm better today. But I need to prove myself every day.

"I struggle to get off the toilet these days!"

Happiness for you used to be smashing an opponent's face in. What does it mean to you now? Screaming children running around. Or being with my pigeons. We need to learn to let go. The essence of happiness is to let go. Nothing is forever. Good advice! You used to be minted. Are you still rich? No, I'm broke and I'm poor. My wife manages me now. She brings in jobs. I need to work. But you're still a champ, right? What qualities does a champ need to have? Self-confidence, belief, force. And you need to understand what it means to lose. You need to be flexible. You need to be able to adapt. You need to bend but not break. When you look in a mirror today, what do you see? I see a joke, a sad figure, somebody who was pretty stupid. I never used to be able to see this. I had to go through life pretending to be a macho. I had no feelings for others, I had no compassion.

I was trained to be that way. I was empty.

What else have you learned over the last few years? That I was insecure and jealous. I had little self-confidence but a big ego. And I've learned that it's the action, not just the talk, that'll move you forward in life.

Who would you say was the best boxer of all time? Probably Ali, but what does that mean, really? It's just a description. Do you ever dream of a comeback? I have difficulties getting off the toilet these days, so no. I can't imagine being back in the ring. Maybe as a coach. Is it true the new Mike is also vegetarian? That's right. I'm a vegan now. I didn't want anything to do with this guy who I once was any more. I didn't want to be a sex addict. a drug addict. I didn't want to be a meat-eater. I'm a totally different person today. Thanks, Mike! Finally, is there anything left of the old Iron Mike? If you push me in a corner, I'll bite you. I'm working on my temper, on getting better. But there's still a long way to go!

"That's some sticky toilet paper!"

inally, conclusive proof that physical exercise is bad for you. The owner of this mangled mitt is Tom Malins, a trainee PE teacher from Stevenage.

Tom, 23, tells Nuts, "It was my last ever lesson at a school, and I covered another teacher for a Year 11 dodgeball lesson, which I stupidly decided to take part in as well. I was holding a ball, and tried to use it to deflect a ball someone had thrown at me.

"The ball was flying so fast, it hit the top of my thumb and I heard a sickening pop. I looked down to see the bone sticking out and my thumb pointing in the wrong direction! I was numb through shock, and lightheaded until an ambulance arrived. It took three surgeons to pull the top of the thumb back into place, and I've now got a screw in my bone, not to mention a fear of dodgeball!"

i Sarah! How does it feel to be Nuts' Next Top Model? Great! It's nice to know people will see me!

Tell us a bit about yourself. I'm 22 and studying criminology at Plymouth Uni. So I'm better at telling if a bloke's lying now!

Being the older girl at uni, do you exploit the new boys? No, I wouldn't do that! I always look after and mother the new boys to help them settle in OK.

What's the most daring thing you've done on a night out? At the end of one night, my mate had only a fiver left and I didn't have any money at all, so she asked me if I'd rather get some food with the money and walk home, or spend the cash on a taxi and not eat. On overhearing our conversation, the bloke serving in the burger van said if I flashed my knickers, he'd give me a burger for free. So I did it!

If you could be any animal for a day, what would you be? I don't like animals. They scare me! Tell you what – it's not really an animal, but I'd like to be a fly on Victoria Beckham's wall for a day. I'd love to see what really goes on behind closed doors!

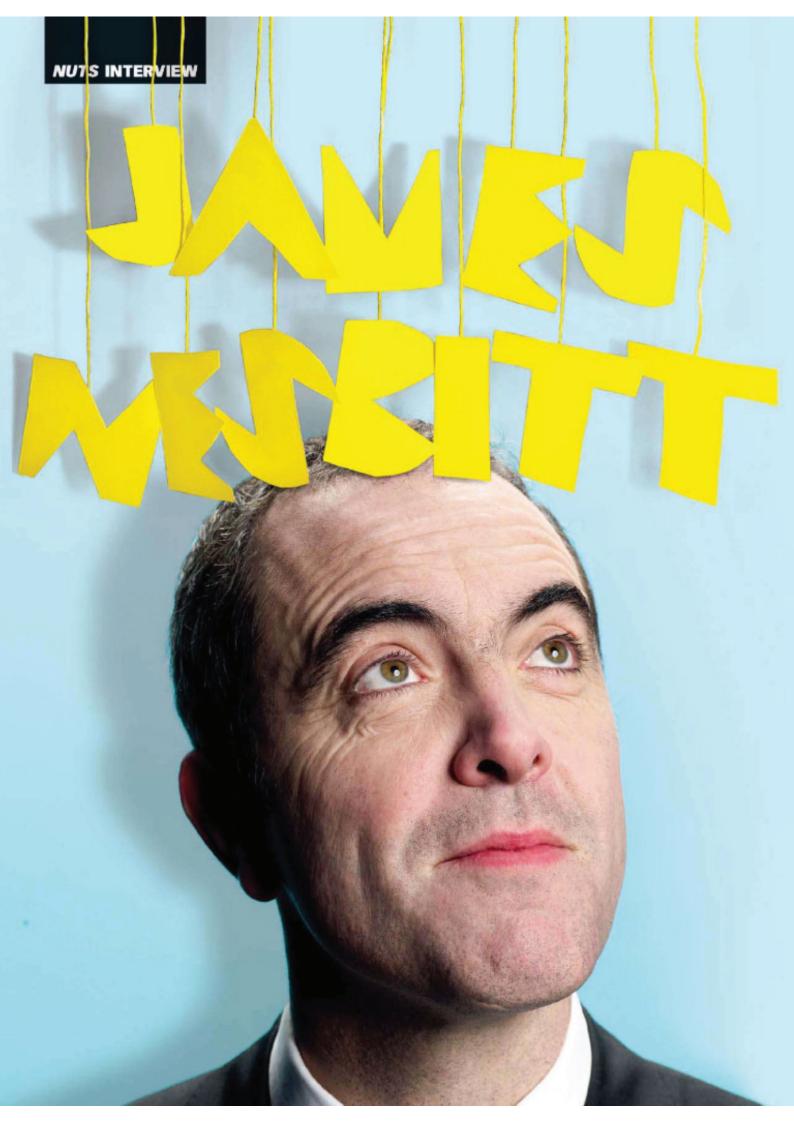

What kind of man do you like?
I like a guy who has a sense of humour, is good with his hands, is a bit older than me and who'll look after me and treat me well!

Finally, what do you think sets you apart as a model? I've got huge boobs that really have to be seen in the flesh to be believed! They feel amazing, too!

The Irish actor on free wine, hobbits and learning lines on the train!

i James! You play doctor Gabriel Monroe in ITV1's new medical drama. Monroe, What's it all about? Is it like House? No. I'm using my own accent for one thing! Monroe's a brain surgeon, so he's remarkably gifted. He's very good at taking people's heads off and looking at their brains and peering into their souls but he's not very good at looking at his own. His home's the hospital so his home life isn't that functional. But he believes the brain's a multi-faceted, brilliant organ, which contains our unique humanity, and the heart's just an organ to pump blood at the end of the day. Crikey! Did you have to go to medical school for eight years, then specialise in neurology for a further four years to really get into the part? No, the beauty of being an actor is that I just have to learn my lines and say them. But I did spend a lot of time with two brain surgeons. I saw four brain operations. Really? Yeah, at one point, one of the surgeons pointed to a bit of brain that had been exposed and just said, "James, that is thought." So that was enough for me! Intense. Did you accept the role thinking it was a drama about '50s American actress Marilyn Monroe and you'd finally get to wear a dress on telly? Er... no! But that's definitely next on the agenda. Glad to hear it. Nuts used to live near you and we'd often see you pacing up and down the local railway platform muttering to yourself. Are you possessed? You're not the first person to have seen that, actually. I'm usually just repeating my lines, which I've decided to learn the morning I'm shooting, to myself. There's an element of panic and fear, which seems to induce fear in others.

As well as Monroe, you're also going to be playing Bofur the hobbit in Peter Jackson's The Hobbit, due out next year. Er... how tall are you? Six foot.

Well, in Middle Earth, hobbits are 3ft 5, dwarves are 4ft 5 and only elves are human height. How do you plan to lose 2ft 5 to play a hobbit? Er... well, I'm kind of hoping Peter Jackson takes care of all that. It seems to me that I'm going to be bigger because I think they're elongating my ears and my head. But I suppose, if the worst comes to the worst, I can do the old-fashioned thing of putting on slippers and walking around on my knees. And instead of riding normal-size horses, I'll be riding little Shetland ponies. You've recently admitted to having a hair transplant. What if a role as Dr Evil from Austin Powers or as Ross Kemp's stunt double comes up? Well, I'll just wear a skullcap. Easy! Good idea. Come to think of it, aren't hobbits supposed to be hairy? Or are we thinking of the ewoks from The Return Of The Jedi? I think they both are, so I don't think I'll have any problems! You did a TV advert for Asda back in 2007. Did you get to fill your trolley with as much booty as you could in one minute, like in Supermarket Sweep, as payment? No. If you recall, I chose the ad rather wisely. I got to go to Bordeaux and talk about wine, which just involved drinking a fair amount of it. The vineyard I was visiting actually stocked all sorts of wine, not just Asda wine! How about that Christmas ad you did for Marks & Spencer in 2009 where you went, "Something nice for your granny." Did you get something nice from M&S for doing their ad? Well, I didn't get something nice for my granny because both of them have been dead for a long time. But I think I was paid for it. That was nice. Thanks, James. Finally, you also own a horse. Got any tips for us? He's called Riverside Theatre, so you can back him at Cheltenham. He's brilliant. He's won a lot of races. He wears Man United's colours, which were designed by my goddaughter. And do you ride him yourself? Er, no. I pay a jockey to ride him for me. How about when you've lost all that height to become a hobbit? Then you'd also make an ideal jockey. You could ride him then! That's right. Then I'd have to pay myself, which I like!

"I'LL JVST VALK M MY KNEES IN THE HOBBIT!

Monroe is on ITV1/HD every Thursday at 9pm

t was 8am on a wet Sunday morning about six months ago. I was rushing to get to work because I had to open up the shop that day and I was worried I was going to be late," Ray Curry, a 21-year-old sales manager from Northumberland, tells Nuts.

"I got in my car, revved the engine and took off. The next thing I knew, I'd hit a slippery patch on the road and slid out of control. Despite my best efforts, I skidded off onto the wrong side of the road. The car smashed off the kerb, flipped over, ploughed clean through a lamppost, then carried on rolling 40 yards alongside a wooden fence, which ran next to the road. As soon as the car came to a halt, I blacked out."

When Ray eventually came to, he was unprepared for the horror he was about to witness.

"When I woke up in what was left of my car, I realised I was stuck for two reasons – the driver's side door was buckled beyond recognition and a huge, heavy, wet wooden fencepost had impaled me through the chest, pinning me between the seat and the ruined door.

Trapped

"It felt like I'd been winded and I started to fear for the worst. I was alone on a country road, early in the morning, with nobody around for miles. I began to panic and for a while, I really thought I was going to die there."

Luckily for Ray, a local man heard the smash and came running to help.

This guy called Gordon came to my rescue and probably saved my life," recalls Ray. "He pulled the door open while I pushed from inside, and I dragged myself out of the car. I could hardly breathe, but I wasn't in much pain, probably due to the shock. All I could think about was I needed to call work to tell them I wouldn't be in! My phone battery was dead, so I had to try to remember my work number and tell Gordon, so he could ring them.

"I must have been delirious because I kept trying to remove the post from my chest as well but every time I moved it, the pain was agonising. It had actually gone right through me and was poking out the other side!

Even lying down was almost impossible. It wasn't long until the medical chopper arrived but before I could be airlifted to hospital, they had to cut off most of the fencepost because I wouldn't have been able to fit inside the air ambulance with it sticking out of me!"

When he eventually reached the hospital, Ray's fight for survival was placed in the hands of the on-site medical team. "At the hospital, I was greeted by members of my family and a very large medical team. The first thing I did was ask my mum to retrieve my phone from the crash site, put it on charge and call my girlfriend to let her know where I was, so she wouldn't think I'd stood her up after work!"

As if the accident wasn't bizarre enough, Ray's doctors were about to find something even stranger.

"After many scans to make sure my smashed-up body could take it, I was rolled into the operating theatre. The surgeons turned me over and found something unusual – there was a four-leaf clover stuck on my back, which had been there since I first rolled out of my demolished car. I'd had no idea about it but when I woke up after surgery, the first thing the doctors told me was about the amazing four-leaf clover.

"I also found out that as well as countless fragments of wood, the surgeons had recovered my Magic Tree air freshener, which was actually inside me! It had been hanging from my rearview mirror and when the fencepost came through, it took the air freshener with it, lodging it inside me."

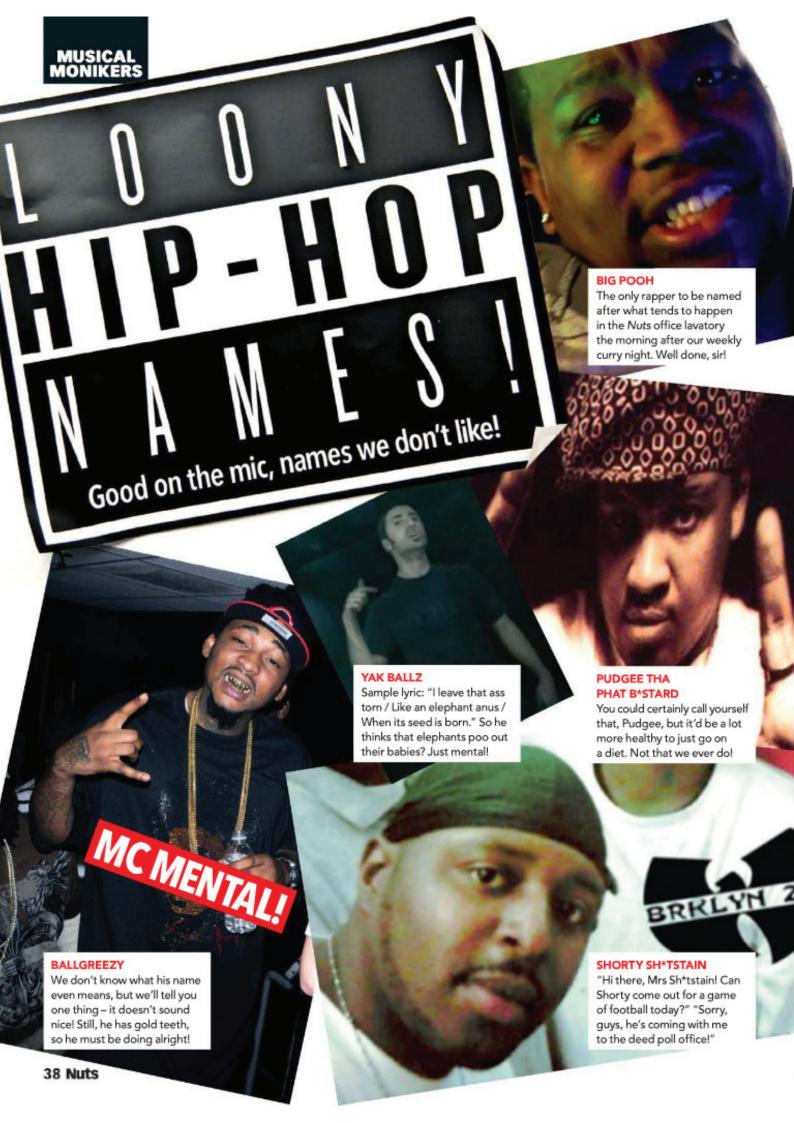

After reeling off his catalogue of gruesome injuries to Nuts, Ray feels blessed to still be alive today and that his lucky four-leaf clover played no small part in his miraculous escape.

"All in all, I had a dislodged bottom rib, shredded bowels, a perforated diaphragm and the normal cuts and bruises everywhere. I'm well on the way to recovery now, though, and I can't wait to get healthy and get back out and play football.

"I can't help but feel lucky to have found that four-leaf clover – or should I say it was lucky the four-leaf clover found me!"

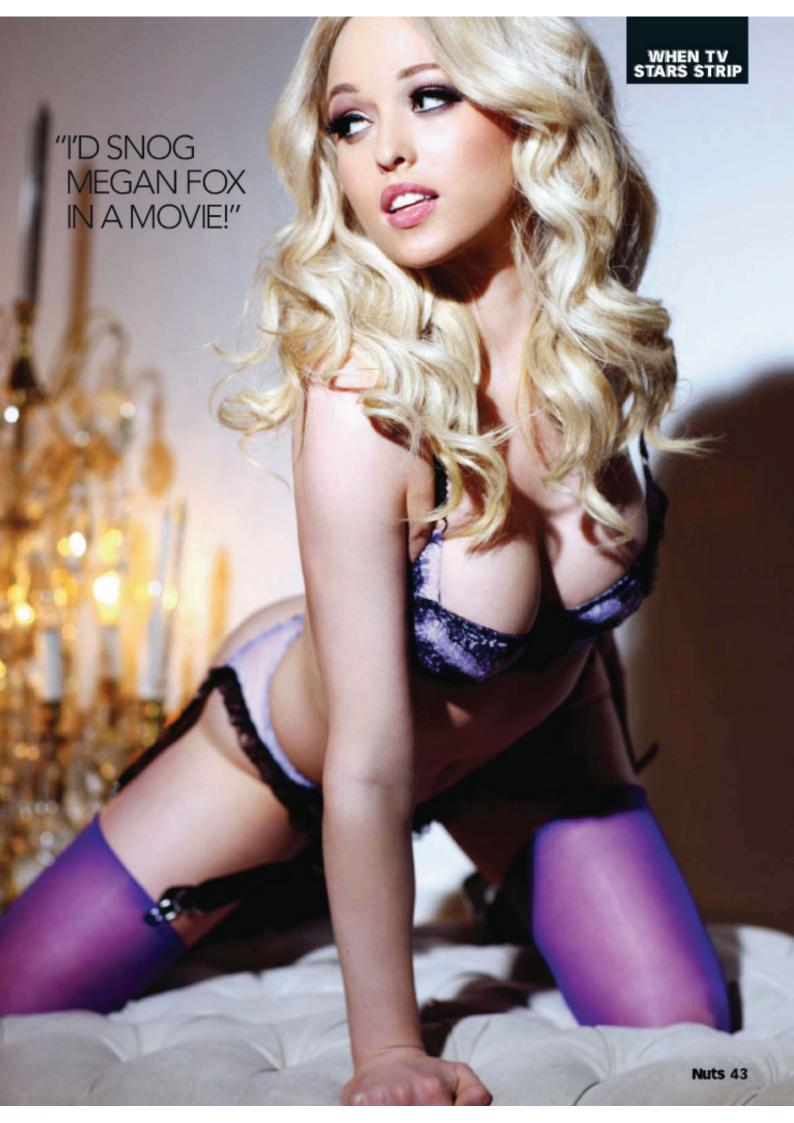

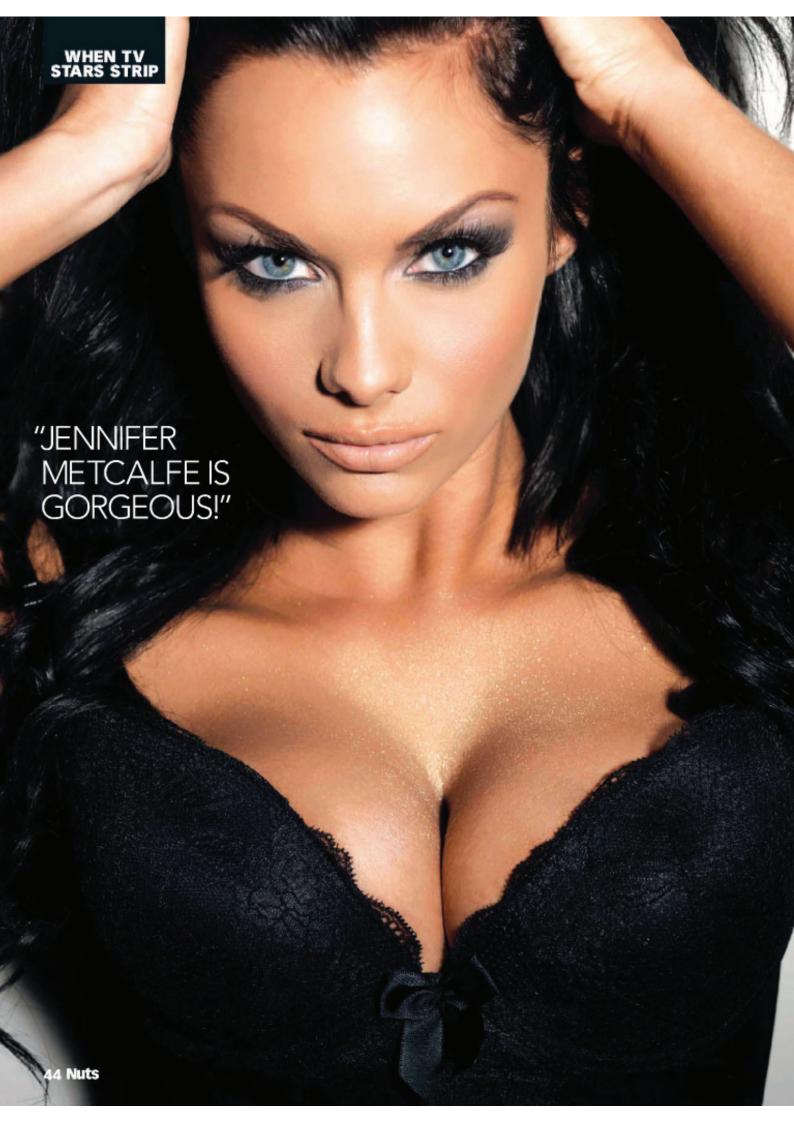

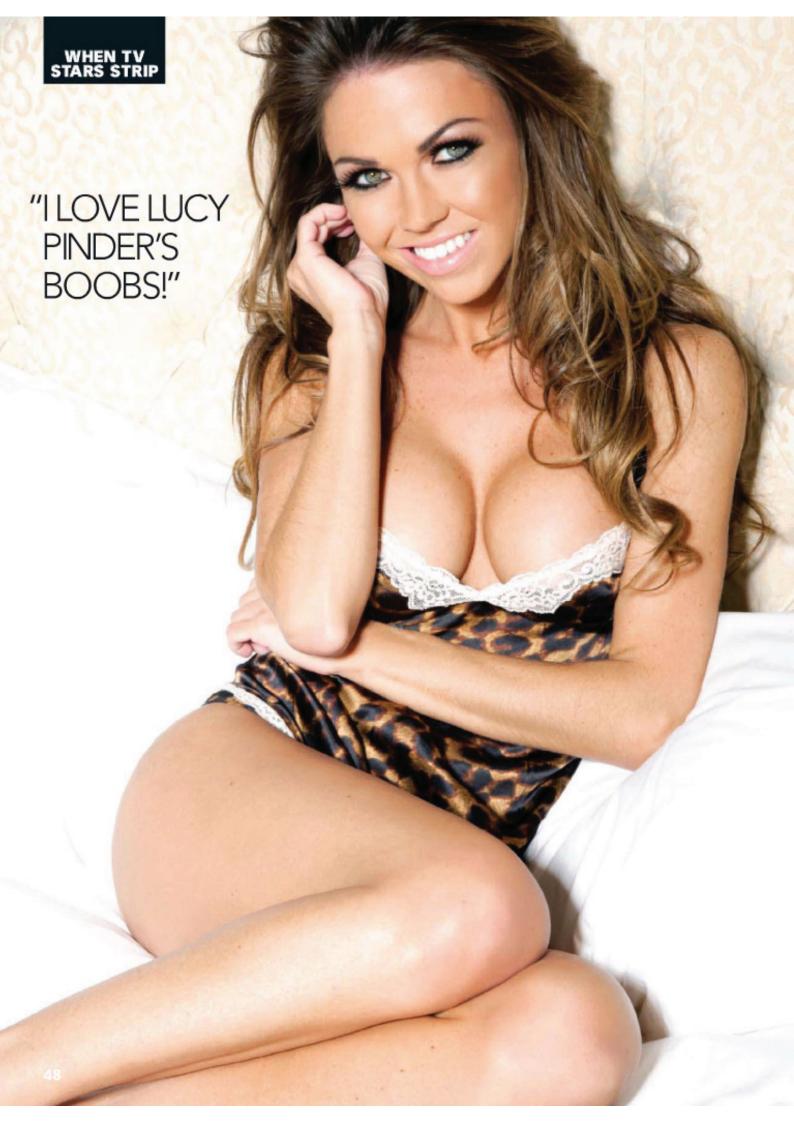

most beautiful whatever, and Lucy Pinder has lovely boobs! What other soap babes do you think are hot? Oh, I love Jorgie Porter. She's gorgeous and has lovely pictures in Nuts! Where's your favourite holiday destination? Hove Dubai! It's one of those places you can go to and chill out, get a tan and a few cocktails. It's my paradise. What's the wildest thing you've done on holiday? A while ago, I went on a girls' holiday to Marbella. We'd do our make-up, have a mini fashion show to pick clothes, go out, come back, crawl over to the sun lounger in the morning then do it all again! You came second in Hell's Kitchen recently... Chelsea vs Man Two big foreign stars chat to Nuts ahead of Sunday's big one!

League OK? It's been an incredible transition. The club have welcomed me like a part of their family. I've always admired English football, so to have the opportunity to play here is an honour!

Many foreign players say our league takes some getting used to because it's so tough. Yes, it's quicker and harder but I knew this before. I may not look tough, but I am! I enjoy the physical aspects - the tackling, the going eve-to-eve with an opponent. Your ability with the ball has drawn comparisons with greats of the game like Bobby Moore, Franz Beckenbauer and Franco Baresi... No way! I'm nowhere near the quality of these legends! I'm only at the start of my career. I suppose it's intelligently. But I know what my main job is - I must defend and stop the goals!

Who's your footballing hero? My father. He was a good footballer himself but sacrificed everything to provide for his family. When I was growing up, he and my mother gave me and my sister everything so we could advance our dreams. My determination comes from the need to repay their faith in me. So why Chelsea? This is simple - the opportunity to come to the best football league in the world and to play with and against so many special players. I'm ambitious so wanted to test myself as early as possible. I already knew Ramires and Alex, too, so I thought they'd help me in the early stages.

- the English warrior with the cultured Brazilian... John Terry is the heart of Chelsea. He's the captain, the leader, the man everyone respects. Already I can see his qualities as a footballer - he puts his body in danger for the team and thinks nothing of it. This is a spirit I admire! You've been an instant hit at Stamford Bridge, with some fans wearing curly wigs! What's the story behind the hairdo? I grew it when I was in Portugal. I was cold and thought it would keep me warm! There were many comments from fans that they liked it, so I thought, "Why not keep it?" If the Chelsea fans want to show their love for it. too, this is fantastic!

Will you ever shave it off? Why would I? It's cold here, too!

was absolutely delighted that Spurs made the last eight of the Champions League after a heart-stopping night at White Hart
Lane and for me, it just proved that when it comes to English managers, there's only one man who's been there and done it all.

"Knowing Harry, he'd take the England job!" I'm proud to call Harry a friend and the one point that can't be made enough is the perception of him as someone who's just a bit of a wheeler-dealer, someone who gets by in football by being a bit handy in the transfer market, couldn't be further from the truth.

As the hard-earned victory against AC Milan showed, Harry's tactically astute, knows how to get results and how to use his squad as well as any manager in the country – to take Tottenham to the quarterfinals of the biggest club competition in the world is nothing short of remarkable.

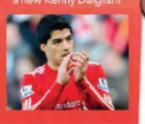

Of course, people are now clamouring for him to be England manager and knowing Harry, he'd take the job tomorrow if it was offered to him. It'd be the pinnacle of his career and you just know he'd get the best out of the players and we'd finally see some proper attacking football from the national side after so long!

It doesn't look like Fabio Capello's going anywhere until after next year, however, so Harry can focus on continuing the fantastic job he's doing at Spurs – a club that are really going places and could well establish themselves as one of the top five clubs in the country.

Whether or not they progress any further in the Champions League remains to be seen, but Spurs fans already know how good their manager is - the best English boss around.

has been for Liverpool since he signed. The little number seven has the makings of a new Kenny Dalglish!

Robin van Persie was understandably livid about his sending off for kicking the ball away against Barca. It was quite simply a stupid decision.

Messi's masterclass

Once again, I was in raptures over Lionel Messi following Barcelona's win against Arsenal last week. The way he dinked the ball over Manuel Almunia for the opening goal was jaw-dropping! He now ranks up there with the likes of Maradona and I just love watching the little genius play. After that display, it's pretty likely we'll see Mr Messi at Wembley for the final in May.

GET ROCKS

Want hair as good as your favourite frontman? Shockwaves will sort it!

e don't know much about grooming here at Nuts. But there comes a point when even we look at ourselves in the mirror and think, "What on earth is going on with my hair?" If, like us, you want to adapt to any situation – whether it's going to a gig, meeting a new lady or just going down the pub – men's hair expert Shockwaves has all the answers.

Shockwaves Style Director Michael Douglas tells Nuts, "Shockwaves has an impressive product range enabling guys to create their own style and make a big impact!" Sounds perfect!

To prove this, we went along to the Shockwaves NME awards 2011, where Michael picked out people in the audience with some of the best styles out there right now, then told us how easy it is to get the look ourselves...

1. THE WET LOOK

Every time we try to get the wet look we just look as if we've been standing in the rain, but this bloke here mastered it, and doesn't it look cool? If you want to get this look, here's Michael to tell you how: "Your haircut needs to be short back and sides with at least 5cm of length on top. Apply a 50p coinsized blob of Shockwaves Extra Strong Wet Look Gel to wet hair and comb back with a wide-tooth comb, then leave to dry. Oh, and no touching until it's dried, which should take about 15 minutes."

Shockwaves Extra Strong Wet Look Gel RRP £2.49* SHOCKWAVES

2. THE AMERICAN

America has given us loads of great things, including some of the greatest rock and roll ever. Here's a hairstyle to match the music! Michael says: "Your hair needs to be longer at the front. Apply Shockwaves Re-Create Styling Shaper Gel to damp hair and blow-dry, pulling the hair forward. Once it's all dry, apply some Shockwaves Re-Create Styling Putty to the fringe and sweep across the face."

Shockwaves Re-Create
Styling Shaper Gel
RRP £2.99, Shockwaves
Re-Create Styling
Putty RRP £2.99*

3. THE ARMY BOY

Fancy a look that's cool, easy and classic but very modern, like this young chap? It's actually so easy to get, and here's Michael to tell you how: "Apply some Shockwaves Styling Steel Gel to damp hair and blow-dry all your hair from the crown forward. Use a comb to keep the hair flat while drying. Once it's all dry, apply Shockwaves Shaping Wax with the palms of your hands to smooth over the hair and sweep the fringe across one way. Simple!"

Shockwaves Styling Steel Gel RRP £2.99, Shockwaves Shaping Wax RRP £2.99*

4. THE ITALIAN

If there's one thing our friends in Italy know, it's how to look stylish. Actually, they're not too bad at football either, their food is really nice and Italian women are stunning. Michael says: "Apply Shockwaves Curls and Waves Mousse to damp hair using your fingers – never a brush or comb! At this stage, you can either leave the hair to dry or use a hairdryer on a low speed but high heat. Once it's dry, squeeze and scrunch in a small amount of Shockwaves Re-Create Styling Wax."

Shockwaves Curls and Waves Mousse RRP £2.49, Shockwaves Re-Create Styling Wax RRP £2.99*

5. THE ROCKER

If we're just heading out to catch up with friends, the last thing we want is to spend ages messing with our locks, so we love the Rocker look. But how to get it? Michael explains: "Apply Shockwaves Curls and Waves Mousse to damp hair and blow-dry on a high heat but low speed. When it's almost dry, put in a deep sideparting and finish with a little Shockwaves Texture Gum. Use hands and fingers to style - no brushes or combs please!"

Shockwaves Curls and Waves Mousse RRP £2.49, Shockwaves Texture Gum RRP £2.99* Shockwaves has a range of great styling products for guys, allowing you to re-style your hair all day long, create whatever look you like and adapt your hair to suit any situation. LADIES STORIES TO OUR SECRETARY!

CONFESSION OF THE WEEK!

'I secretly pleasured her in bed'

After a recent party, my boyfriend's friend came back to ours and, as we only have one bed, she climbed in with me and my man. He fell asleep quickly and I closed my eyes, too. Suddenly, I heard heavy breathing in my ear and I could feel it being licked. I kept my eyes closed and enjoyed the fingers sliding up my leg and playing with me until, after a few minutes, I could feel I was about to climax. As I quietly came, I opened my eyes to discover it wasn't my boyfriend but his friend! She looked so sexy as she lay there, so I grabbed her closer and kissed her. I got incredibly turned on again as her kisses were so soft and tender, then I quietly pleasured her without my boyfriend even waking up. They're still good friends, but she's now my dirty little secret!

Lauren, London

'I felt tingles all over my body'

One evening, my work colleague and I were walking home together after a night out. We were both a bit tipsy, and along the way, she stopped and gave me a drunken kiss before slowly rubbing my thighs. At that, I felt tingles all over my body. When we reached my flat, she came in with me and through to the kitchen. I sat on the counter top and held her ponytail, while she moved between my legs. The noises must have woken up my flatmate because soon, he walked in. The look on his face told us what was on his mind so I gave him the go-ahead with a cheeky wink. He kissed my neck while his fingers probed between my friend's legs. I took off his shorts to reveal his hard erection. He lifted me up and sat me on top of him as I slowly started to grind against him. My friend then climbed over me so I could pleasure her. The next morning was a bit embarrassing at work, but it was worth it!

Orla, Dublin

'She invited me to join in'

I'm at uni and live in a house with three other girls and four lads. One night, I heard one of the girls coming home with a boy. I was feeling horny, so I listened while having a little play with myself. Before long, curiosity got the better of me, so I crept out of my room and slowly opened my friend's door. She was on top, facing me and bouncing up and down. She saw me but instead of being shocked, she invited me in. I obliged, and soon she was going down on me while he pleasured her. It felt so good that I screamed in pleasure. My other housemates soon came out of their rooms to investigate and we've been the talk of the campus ever since!

Alex, Lancs

'We took him home with us'

I'm a supermarket manager and recently, a male colleague wanted to talk to me about a promotion, so I invited him to a nearby pub to discuss it with him after work. After a couple of drinks, my girlfriend came over on her way home. Before she sat down, she greeted me with a lingering kiss, much to the delight of my colleague. Soon, the drinks began flowing and the talk got dirty, and before long, my colleague announced his fantasy was to sleep with two women. At the mention of this, my girlfriend and I gave each other a look and then invited him back to ours. Once there, he unzipped his jeans, and my girlfriend and I dropped to our knees and fought over who could take him in the mouth. As I worked his shaft with my tongue, my friend licked him lower down. Needless to say, my colleague got his promotion and now the three of us regularly enjoy our special nights out together!

And just check out the bonkers background of these celebrities, courtesy of Ancestry.co.uk!

n England legend he may be, but it appears the man dubbed Goldenballs by his own missus is probably related to some old nobleman. That's because genealogists believe all bearers of the name Beckham can trace their roots back to Sir Roger de Narford, who was granted the manors of East and West Beckham in Norfolk by King Edward III way back in the 14th century. Obviously, he didn't want a poncey French-sounding name, so swapped it for Beckham. Which is good thing, 'cos it wouldn't have sounded the same if the commentator had said, "I don't believe it! David de Narford scores the goal that takes England all the way to the World Cup finals!"

he supermodel and allround party girl is a Londoner through and through. Researchers have traced her family back 200 years in the capital. But she's not the first member of the family to make a living out of the fashion trade. That privilege goes to her greatgrandmother, who's listed in one census as the "mantle maker of fashionable doaks".

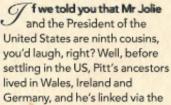

repare to be spooked by this one. Pattinson, who plays blood-sucking Edward Cullen in the Twilight film series, is related to the 15th-century Romanian nutter Vlad the Impaler, who was the inspiration for the character of Dracula in Bram Stoker's 1897 novel. Researchers discovered that the pair share the unholy connection through our very own royal family. Pattinson is distant cousins with Princes William and Harry on their father's side, making Mr Impaler a distant same eighth great-grandfat Edwin Hickman, to Barack Obama. But it doesn't stop there - he's also related to former US president George W Bush! If the acting dries up, maybe Brad should give politics a go?

ho'd have thought that the sweet-talking American pop superstar could trace her ancestry back to north London? Historic marriage records reveal that her greatgrandparents were married near Tottenham in the English capital. Just think - if things had turned out differently and her ancestors hadn't decided to emigrate to America, she may well have turned out to be a member of N-Dubz! And instead of shaving her head, she'd spend her spare time cheering on Spurs!

What is the census?

The census basically takes a snapshot of the nation. Every household in England and Wales receives a questionnaire asking about the job, health, education etc of every person living there, and the stats are used by the government to plan how best to run the country. After 100 years, records are made public, so websites such as Ancestry.co.uk are a great way to find out more about your past. Who knows what you may find out - you may even be related to David Beckham!
